ABOUT BCTRRCR

---

The British Columbia Technical and Research Committee on Reclamation (BCTRRCR) was established in the early 1970s to address the need for improved government-industry communication regarding environmental protection and reclamation in the mining sector. The BCTRRCR has aimed to further the scientific, educational and professional body of knowledge and practice regarding reclamation and environmental protection in mining by sponsoring the British Columbia Mine Reclamation Symposium since 1977.

This event serves as a platform for professionals to exchange information and ideas on reclamation practices. The Symposium's proceedings, published alongside each event, are a vital resource for anyone involved in the field.

WHO ATTENDS

---

The annual symposium includes technical sessions, workshops, mine tours and networking opportunities reflecting current practice and technology of mining reclamation in British Columbia and beyond for the benefit of the academic, consulting, industrial, regulatory and Indigenous communities. Annually, over 200 professionals gather to discuss innovations and challenges in mine reclamation and environmental stewardship. This diverse representation fosters a collaborative environment where a broad range of perspectives can contribute to the ongoing development of best practices in reclamation.
